

Taylor and Francis online

International Information & Library Review

Volume 44, Issue 1, 2012

Sustainable consortium building among university libraries in Nigeria: Adoption of new strategies

Original Articles

Sustainable consortium building among university libraries in Nigeria: Adoption of new strategies

Preview

DOI:

10.1080/10572317.2012.10762910

Ifijeh Goodluck

pages 8-12

Publishing models and article dates explained

Published online: 02 Dec 2013

Abstract

This paper makes a case for sustainable consortium building among University libraries in Nigeria. It examines critical issues involved in consortium building, identifies inherent problems and charts the way forward in dealing with identified problems. It further posits that if carefully planned and executed, consortium building could help Nigerian University libraries improve and sustain services to users.

Keywords

Consortium building, University libraries, Nigeria